

Rock Snake

Painted rocks done by children during the pandemic

During last year's lockdown a local resident got children involved in painting rocks which were laid along the path from the school to the Esso garage. There are approximately 450 painted rocks which stretch about 60metres end to end.

The Council has been asked to make it into a permanent installation in memoriam of 2020 and it is suggested that it is done in a rainbow effect in approximately 6sqm of concrete. The preferred location is a patch of ground just by the path to M&S, which would not interfere with the use and enjoyment of Lion Green and is in a highly visible place.

The quotes below are for a hardcore base and concrete top approx. 6qm. and installing the rocks in the configuration set out by the resident who started the project.
